

Online Resources for Teaching M-Learning (Mobile Learning)

Going Mobile: Teaching with Handheld Devices

Mobile learning involves the use of a handheld mobile device such as a mobile phone, MP3 or MP4 player, PDA and iPhone or iPad to assist or enhance learning. It is an emerging field in English language learning. Going Mobile explains, and then demonstrates with practical activities, how to use mobile devices in English Language Teaching in a principled and pedagogically-sound way. Several excerpts from this book, authored by Gavin Dudeney and Nicky Hockley (The Consultants-E), appear below:

Addicted!

Twitter celebrities

Time will tell

Follow me!

*Please note that Going Mobile is available in hard-copy book only and can be borrowed from the LTRC; the above are text excerpts that can be used in class with learners who bring their own mobile devices.*